What does it mean to make the hardest decision of your life? Of having to choose immediate sacrifice in order to avoid a pain that is everlasting? 'Deferred' is a journey that answers these questions with rich, vivid detail and with a sense of honesty that is oftentimes unexpected. Indeed, Michael Ttappous opens his heart to share a fight with educational, financial, bureaucratic, governmental, and militaristic obstacles in a way that shows just how unforgiving the world can sometimes be. As a student approaching graduation and stuck in a one-way tunnel of questions and setbacks, Michael's answer to life's hardest challenges come with the discovery of New York University Abu Dhabi, a unique institution providing the gateway to a better future. Yet, with a future that is possible but still blocked by life-changing obstacles, it is dedication to ideals that brings strength to weakness, even in the most unlikely of times, and that challenges the idea of acceptance and surrender.

A story of sweat, toil, and ultimate victory

By Valerie Caraotta

This book represents author Michael Ttappous' hard-fought battles in achieving academic excellence while living under the umbrella of the Cyprus government and the stronghold placed amongst the residents. A South African native, his family would arrive in Cyprus when he was eight years old escaping fears and threats in the early 2000s only to later discover a crisis that would lay hold of their sons future and the future of all young men.

As Michael Ttappous takes you inside to his heart, learning style and academic rigors, the reader will gain a sense of drivenness he possesses as well as tremendous resiliency and vision. It would all begin with an urgency to get off this tiny island in the Mediterranean Sea. With citizens unable to get jobs and the unfairness secured in government jobs, his ticket to a better future would come from his educational excellence. Excellence is indeed what he achieved at his high school – International School of Paphos(ISOP), reaching his goal of eight A's. Additionally he would obtain the highest mark on his Cambridge exams, be awarded top student in economics and business, and the ultimate prize of a full scholarship to New York University Abu Dhabi(NYUAD).

These achievements however carried a mental and emotional cost equal to the $70,000/year awarded to him for his studies. This amazing story will connect you to a young man whose hope refused to die despite seemingly insurmountable obstacles. Discover how his invitation to attend candidate weekend would open him up to obstacles and how apparent it would be that his fate was destined for greatness.

A young man with a dream, no money, but supportive parents would be all that was ultimately needed in the end. Here he reflects upon the mandatory two year enlistment the Cypriot military imposes for males after high school. "The military successfully created a culture of antagonism and factionalism aimed at disrupting and derailing the lives of every aspiring scholar... almost brought them to their breaking points". Though he currently has struggles and concerns today, the reader is left with a sense of certainty, based on all he accomplished, that in the end the bumpy road will smooth out and that he will be a change agent in years to follow.

This book serves as a motivational force to all that are forging through cloudy obstacles. It is a strengthener for a solid resolve to never give up a dream and that doors meant to open for us will....eventually. I will recommend this book to many as it is a real page turner and written from the heart.
